NUMB 2475

SATURDAY, MAY 28. 1743.

Yeſterday arrived a Mail from Holland.

Conſtantinople, March 28.

IT is ſteadily believed here, that the Perſian Monarch has nothing ſo much in View as attacking this Empire; and to this we refer all his late Expeditions, which appear ſo wild and unaccountable to our Neighbours. This we have diſcovered, that his Attempt upon Ruſſia was altogether a Feint; and that immediately after he was forc'd to retire by the Inhabitants of the Mountains, he ſent an Officer to aſſure them, that he would forget what was paſt, and give them a great Sum of Money, if, at a Time fix'd, they would undertake to open a Paſſage for him towards the Black Sea; and that, in the mean time, he would reinforce his Army in Perſia. We have too much Reaſon to believe, from certain Circumſtances, that this Negotiation has actually taken Effect; and that as ſoon as the Shah can bring down his Troops, we ſhall be attack'd on both Sides. In order to defeat all theſe Contrivances, we have had Recourſe to two very ſingular Schemes; the one is, to march a very conſiderable Body of Forces towards the Black Sea, with the Conſent of Ruſſia; tho' the People are told we intend to build a new Fortreſs over-againſt that of Aſoph. This quiets them as to Affairs abroad, and as to the Regulation of Things at home, the Grand Signior has given two Daughters of Sultan Achmet to two of his Favourites, and made thereupon prodigious Entertainments, chiefly to content the Populace, who have had vaſt Quantities of Proviſions and Sweetmeats abandon'd to them, ſo that, at preſent, we are in the beſt Humour imaignable; but how long it will laſt, is what we do not pretend to know.

Petersbourg, May 14. It is not eaſy to penetrate the Deſigns of this Court. Count Lacy ſet out Yeſterday, in order to embark on board the Gallies, in which there are already 18,000 Men, with General Lewaſchew, and the Lieutenant-Generals Brielli and Soltikoff, who are to command under him. The Gallies are to be eſcorted by a Fleet conſiſting of 23 Men of War of the Line, commanded by Count Gallowin. Count Lacy carries with him a Manifeſto, in which the Czarina declares, that it is with great Reluctance ſhe has Recourſe to this Step; but that if the Swedes will hearken to any reaſonable Terms, ſhe will puſh Matters no farther; and in caſe, as they ſuggeſt, their making Peace with her, ſhould draw upon them the Reſentment of any of her Neighbours, ſhe is very ready to enter into the ſtricteſt Engagements to ſuccour them with all the Forces of her Empire.

Stockholm, May 24. The Affair of the Succeſſion is put off for three Weeks, thro' the ſudden Turn of the Order of Burgeſſes, who declared at once, That they were reſolved not to diſtreſs or diſturb the Peace of their Country, and that therefore they would wait till the Secret Committee thought it a proper Time, rather than precipitate Things by too haſty a Choice. This was occaſioned by an Inſurrection in Dalcarlia, where the Peaſants have reſolved not to ſuffer any Levies, either of Troops or Money, till the Dyet ſhall have complied with theſe Demands. I. To put to Death the two impriſon'd Generals. II. To proſecute the Authors of the preſent War. III. To elect the Prince of Denmark Succeſſor to the Crown, and to ſend for him immediately into the Kingdom. IV. That the Nobility and Clergy ſhould, for the future, pay Contributions in the ſame Proportion as the Burgeſſes and Peaſants. The Dyet have referred theſe Things entirely to his Majeſty and the Senate; upon which his Majeſty ſent for the Deputies of the Province of Dalcarlia, and told them roundly, That, in this Time of Diſtreſs, they ought to think of aſſiſting their Country, inſtead of diſturbing her Peace; and that if, contrary to their Duty, they continued any longer in Arms, or refuſed to contribute as good Subjects to the Neceſſities of the State, his Majeſty would immediately endeavour to reduce them by Force; for whatever Misfortunes they might be expoſed to Abroad, his Majeſty was reſolv'd to ſee himſelf, and the Dyet, abſolutely obey'd at Home. His Majeſty has declared Marſhal Hamilton General and Commander in Chief of the Army, and Count Taube of the Fleet, with which the Dyet is very well ſatisfied. Count Teſſin perſiſts in his Reſolution, tho' the Dyet does not ſeem at all inclined to grant him Leave to reſign.

Madrid, May 18. On the 8th of this Month the Marquis de la Enſenada arrived at Aranjuez, and was preſented to the King and Queen by the Marquis de Villarias, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. That very Evening the new Miniſter did Buſineſs with the King in all the four Departments of War, of the Marine, of the Indies, and of the Finances. The next Morning he was declared Superintendant of the Finances. In the Evening he ſent for all the Officers belonging to each of his Departments, and told them in their Turns, that he was reſolved to make no Alteration whatever in their Manner of doing Buſineſs; that all he had in View was to purſue the Plan of his Predeceſſor; and that all who enjoy'd his Favour were equally welcome to him. It is now given out here, that his Majeſty is thoroughly ſatisfied of the Impoſſibility of penetrating thro' Piedmont into Italy; and that therefore it has been reſolved to abandon Savoy, and to attempt the Paſſage by Nice and Villa Franca.

Berlin, May 28. His Majeſty made on the 20th a grand Military Promotion, conſiſting of 3 Generals of Infantry, as many Lieutenant-Generals, 8 Major-Generals, 2 without Regiments, and 7 of Horſe. Colonel Schmettau Quarter-maſter General of the Army, and 21 Colonels. We begin to talk again of ſending a Body of Troops into the Field; and it was obſerv'd, that at the Review his Majeſty ask'd the Marquis de Botta, if the Saxons were yet ready, to which his Excellency anſwer'd in the Affirmative. Several young Noblemen having ask'd his Majeſty's Leave, to ſerve in the Auxiliary Army as Voluntiers, it was not only given them, but his Majeſty adviſed they ſhould take Hanover in their Way, and has actually written in their Favour to the King of Great Britain.

Franckfort, May 30. According to a Liſt publiſh'd by the Imperialiſts, they loſt in the Battle of Braunau above 2000 Men kill'd on the Spot; General Gabrieli is ſince dead of his Wounds. There are 4000 Imperial Troops in Braunau, which are furniſhed with Proviſions for ten Days, reckoning from this. On the 12th the Imperial Army decamped from Otingen, and arrived the ſame Day at Mildorff, on the 13th at Groburg, on the 14th at Waſſerbourg, on the 15th at Ebersberg, on the 16th at Arting, on the 17th at Freiſingen, on the 19th at Mosburg, and on the 20th at Landſhut. This March was Night and Day, without either Tents or Baggage; and tho' they broke down the Bridges behind them, yet they had everlaſtingly the Huſſars at their Heels, and ſuffer'd exceſſively. It is given out, that after they are join'd by the French, his Imperial Majeſty will take the Command, and immediately attempt the Relief of Braunau, by attacking the Auſtrian Army. If this be their Intention, it is certain they will meet with no great Difficulty in finding them; for Prince Charles has intrench'd between Braunau and the Iſer, and ſeems determin'd to wait there for thoſe who have ſo often talk'd of fighting him, Mentz, May 28. The French Troops that have paſs'd the Rhine do not ſeem at all diſpos'd to extend their Quarters; and, on the other hand, the Auxiliaries are raiſing ſuch vaſt Magazines in the Neighbourhood of that River, that we begin to be very apprehenſive that this Country will become the Seat of War. Our laſt Advices from Bavaria inform us, that the Auſtrian Huſſars make Excurſions to the very Gates of Munich; and a Letter from that City dated the 20th, ſays expreſsly, that his Imperial Majeſty was retired, but that it was not certainly known whether; as alſo, that he had cauſed a Proteſtation againſt the Queen of Hungary's being crown'd at Prague, to be publiſh'd there by Sound of Trumpet, and afterwards to be fix'd up in the principal Places of the City; that this Piece was but very ſhort, and dated at Munich the 3d of May, 1743.

Hague, June 5. We are extremely embaraſſed here with different Pieces of News from Bavaria; the laſt we have is by the Way of Dreſden, and the Subſtance, that a Courier had been diſpatch'd from Prince Charles of Lorrain to Count Eſtarhazi, with Advice that the Town of Braunau had been ſtorm'd on the 22d; and that after the Slaughter of 800 Men, the Governor had capitulated; but this Piece of News is ſtill thought to want Confirmation. We are better ſatisfied as to what we received from Turin, where the King continues firm to his Engagements, and has yet had the good Luck to merit the Eſteem of France, by abſolutely refuſing to act offenſively againſt her.

IRELAND.

LONDON.

It is confidently aſſerted in Letters from Hanover, that the Marriage between the Prince Royal of Denmark and the Princeſs Louiſa will take Place in the Month of Auguſt next.

His Imperial Majeſty has actually taken up his Reſidence, with all his Court at Augsbourg; but it is generally believed, that as ſoon as the Armies join, his Majeſty will return to Landſhut, Marſhal Broglio, and the reſt of the French Officers of Diſtinction, have ſent their Baggage, and the beſt part of their Effects, to Ratisbon.

It is now certain that Marſhal Noailles will very ſoon be recall'd, in order to aſſiſt his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty with his Councils; M. Broglio will command the Army in his ſtead; the Prince of Conti will be at the Head of that in Bavaria, and Count Maurice of Saxony will remain with the Forces in the Upper Palatinate.

The Heſſian Troops that march'd lately to join the Army of the Auxiliaries, conſiſt of 6648 Foot, and 2775 Horſe. Their Drums are all of Copper, and the reſt of their Muſick is much admired. That of each Regiment conſiſts of 3 French Horns, a Haughtboy, a Baſe, and two Trumpets. When their Drums beat, they are accompanied by Fifes.

The Catharine, Shea, from Waterford to Leghorn, is taken and carried into Alguzira.

Yeſterday died, at his Houſe in Bernaby-ſtreet, Mr. Mackerell, jun. an eminent and wealthy Woolſtapler.

THE Elements of ALGEBRA, in a New and Easy Method; with their Use and Application, in the Solution of a great Variety of Arithmetical and Geometrical Questions, by General and Universal Rules.

To which is prefix'd, An Introduction containing a succinct History of this Science.

By Mr. NATHANIEL HAMMOND, of the Bank.

Extract from the Account of this Book in the Works of the Learned.

'The World has long complained of the Want of a proper Introduction to Algebra. Some are so very concise, as if they were contrived not to teach but introduce a Teacher; others again are larger, but wrote with so little Condescention to the Understandings of such as are altogether unacquainted with the Science, that they are of very little Use to those who are most inclined to make use of them. Whence it comes to pass, that few find it practicable to make any Progress in Algebra without a Master, tho' certainly the Science in itself is far from surpassing a clear Head, and a tolerable Understanding.

'The Design of this Treatise, which is of a reasonable Bulk, and which contains nothing which is not to the Purpose, is to assist such as are engaged in teaching Algebra with a regular Method, and a large Stock of Examples; so that their Scholars may find Employment in their Absence; and to enable such as live in Country-Places, and must consequently want all other Tutors, except Books, to acquire such a Skill in this Science, as may enable them to spend a Portion of their Time agreeably in the Cultivation of the better Parts, and in rendering a natural Method of enquiring after Truth habitual.

'The Treatise begins with a copious Explication of the Fundamental Principles of the Art, and of the Signs and Method of Notation used therein. The Author then proceeds to the several Rules, explaining them carefully and copiously in all their various Cases; so that with a moderate Attention it is simply impossible for a Person, who designs to be Master of Algebra, to miss of his End.

'We never find this Writer advancing any thing out of its proper Place, or burthening the Mind of his Scholar with Rules, before they become necessary: He professes to have imitated the judicious Euclid in this Respect; and he has done it with equal Art and Felicity. By this means he has delivered the young Student in Algebra from that which is usually the most fatiguing Part of the Science, viz. The Doctrine of Surds, in the Manner in which it is usually taught. By the same Means he leads his Reader directly to Equations; and, by shewing him the Profit he will reap from this Science, encourages him to overcome all its Difficulties. But having thus laid a strong and rational Foundation, he moves more slowly through the rest of his Work, that whoever follows him, may be obliged to become Master of ever Branch of the Art, so as to be a compleat Algebraist before he quits his Book, and not a Smatterer.

'Quadratic Equations, and the Art of managing Converging Series, the admirable Invention of the incomparable Newton, are here so clearly explained, and their several Cases so plainly set down, and so thoroughly explicated, that it may be truly said, there are no where else such Instructions to be met with. At the Close of the Book, we find also a Variance of Observations, necessary for enlightening such Minds as are willing to proceed still farther in analytic Discoveries; so that considering the Compass of this Work, and that the Price is very moderate, it is as complete as possibly can be expected: And he who is thoroughly versed in it, will find no great Difficulties, when he proceeds to sublimer Studies. The Language is plain and natural, the Book is more copious than any other in Examples, and the Illustrations of them are so full and clear, that it is impossible to mistake the Meaning.'——
